If you got question 2 incorrect, re-read this passage and attempt the question again.

'After that it did not seem strange when next day the pigs who were supervising the work of the farm all carried whips in their trotters. It did not seem strange to learn that the pigs had bought themselves a wireless set, were arranging to install a telephone, and had taken out subscriptions to 'John Bull', 'Tit-Bits', and the 'Daily Mirror'. It did not seem strange when Napoleon was seen strolling in the farmhouse garden with a pipe in his mouth—no, not even when the pigs took Mr. Jones's clothes out of the wardrobes and put them on ...'

Here is the final commandment from 'Animal Farm'. 'All animals are equal but some are more equal than others'. Which statements about this commandment are correct? (2)

- a) The commandment was included in the original Seven Commandments.
- b) The commandment is suggesting that no animals should be leaders or rulers.
- c) The pigs use the commandment to take advantage of the other animals on the farm.
- d) All of the animals agree for the final commandment to be changed,
- e) The pigs change the commandment so that they can take control of the farm and have ultimate power like Mr Jones.

If you got question 8 incorrect, re-read this passage and attempt the question again.

How is pathos created in Boxer's final moments on Animal farm?

- Boxer is taken when the other animals are working. He is not able to say goodbye to his friends on the farm.
- He goes willingly, believing that he is going to hospital. He has been fooled.
- Benjamin, the donkey, desperately seeks help from the other animals. He, like the reader, want to save Boxer.
- The animals' cheerful chorus of 'Goodbye' turns to a 'deadly silence' then a 'cry of horror' when they finally realise where Boxer is going.
- When Boxer eventually understands that is happening, he tries to fight his way out but is not strong enough. He has lost his strength, which was one of his greatest characteristics.
- Their last chance is to shut the farm gate, but they are too late. None of their attempts to save Boxer work.

How does Orwell create pathos in Boxer's final moments on Animal Farm? (3)

- a) He is allowed to say goodbye to his friends on the farm.
- b) Boxer is fooled and thinks he is going to the hospital.
- c) The animals are able to save Boxer in the end.
- d) Boxer is taken when the other animals are working. He doesn't get to say goodbye.
- e) Boxer tries to fight his way out but is not strong enough.

If you got both answers correct, write an answer to this question:

Why do you think the animals accept Napoleon's abuse of power as a leader? Why do they not rebel against his leadership?
